McCOSH AND JOYNES.

We all remember Dr. McCosh's visit to Raleigh last Spring. While here, he was the guest of that eminent man of piety and accomplished gentleman and scholar, Rev. Dr. Atkinson, of the Presbyterian Church.

Dr. McCosh preached some able sermons while in this city, and we learn that he expressed himself well pleased with the attention and hospitality which had been extended him.

It is reported that he manifested agreeable surprise at the condition of Southern society, as he had been led to believe that it was almost dangerous for even a minister of the Gospel to travel unprotected through the Southern States. It was evident, if his conversation has been reported to us correctly, that he expected to find the Southern people but one remove above barbarians, and that his mind had been poisoned towards us by exaggerated Ku Klux tales and other hobgoblin stories.

Dr. McCosh's mind, it was thought, had been disabused of these erroneous impressions and the gratification he had expressed at his reception in the South, led us to believe that he would, on his return home, take up the cudgels in our defense, and assist by his able pen and extended influence in correcting popular sentiment at the North, which had been moulded by misrepresentations and falsehoods.

Imagine our surprise when we read the statement that the distinguished Dr. McCosh, President of Princeton College, made a hostile attack upon the Southern States, which brought Prof. Joyner, of Virginia, to his feet, who vindicated the South from the aspersions which had been cast upon her by the learned McCosh. Prof. Joyner's remarks were frequently applauded. He showed that Dr. McCosh did not know what he was talking about, albeit he strove to sustain his position by illustrations drawn from his personal observations during his Southern tour.

Dr. McCosh advocated the position that the Northern, Middle and Western States should maintain and control "their own schools; but that in the South the General Government should provide for the education of the colored children by special enactment."

In other words, if we understand the learned gentleman's position he desires a kind of Freedmen's Bureau of Instruction for the South, in which Congress shall undertake to educate all the colored children in the land, at the expense of the nation, by establishing freedmen's schools under the supervision and control of teachers appointed by the Government!

The people of the South owe a debt of gratitude to Prof. Joyner for his eloquent vindication of their character and institutions from McCosh's aspersions.

FAIRCHILD, OF KENTUCKY.

At the National Educational Convention which was in session at Elmira, New York, last week, an individual by the name of Fairchild, who hails from Kentucky, made a speech in which he asserted that the old slaveholders in the Southern States were opposed to popular education, and especially to the education of the colored race, and were doing all in their power to keep the colored people in ignorance.

This slander was properly met by Prof. Joyner, of the Washington-Lee University of Virginia, and Mr. McIver, our Superintendent of Public Instruction, both of whom were delegates at Elmira.

Mr. Fairchild's statement, so far as North Carolina is concerned, is certainly without foundation. We do not know what could have been his purpose, in the presence of many of the most distinguished educators in the United States, in making this assertion, unless it was to arouse their prejudices against the South.

Who is "Mr. Fairchild, of Kentucky?" and what authority has he to go into a national association of teachers, and hold up the section from which he hails in false and repulsive colors? Why should he desire to slander and misrepresent the old slaveholders of the South? What evidence did he furnish to sustain his charges?

We suspect that this "Mr. Fairchild, of Kentucky," is a New England carpet-bagger, who is ashamed of his color and a zealous advocate of miscegenation.

No true Southern man will get up at a great national gathering of eminent scholars and literary gentlemen, to malign and traduce the "old slaveholders" or any other class of his fellow citizens, as Fairchild is represented to have done.

REVIEWS ON CÆSARIANISM.

Who in America would have a Cæsar?

1. Not all the 70,000 or 80,000 officials that enjoy the patronage of the Federal Government; but, possibly, a proportion of them much larger than unsuspecting people would imagine. Macbeth, with Duncan's crown upon his head, mournfully says:

"To be thus is nothing;
But to be so is nothing."

A nomination by the President and a confirmation by the Senate is good while it lasts; but it is precarious and short-lived: the offices given by Cæsar die only with Cæsar or with Cæsar's pleasure. The salaries of the Republic are mean and niggardly; the allowances of Cæsar are princely and magnificent.

How enticing the prospect to the man that loves money, ease and honors, better than he loves country or humanity! Wealth and hereditary titles of nobility both got in an hour—the short struggle of the successful coup d'état! The exchange of a four year's commission for an appointment for life! The swapping of meagre pay, merely sufficient to sustain the simplicity of republican manners, for the ten-fold rewards of complaisance to the empire!

Purity and patriotism have not taken final leave of the Federal service; but organized effort might first neutralize and then overwhelm all that is left of them. And who shall say that effort may not be made, if the people indefinitely renew quadrennial leases of power to a bold, still-tongued, money-loving, sate-loving Executive? Five millions, per annum, for life, in place of the fifty thousand a year for four years—an insignificant amount that some of the rabble are complaining of as exorbitant! A life-time investiture of revenues, title and power with right of transmission (itself the most fascinating part of the possession) to children! What is this ephemeral trifle worth, that the American people have given me?

"Upon my head they placed a fruitless crown,
And put a barren sceptre in my gripe,
Thence to wrenched with an unfeeling hand,
No son of mine succeeding."

RUSTICUS.
[The types yesterday made us say "lance of the villain" for "lance of the Uhlans".]

OVERWHELMING MAJORITY FOR THE AMENDMENTS.

The returns of the late election which have been thus far received, corroborate the opinion expressed by us a few days ago that the amendments are ratified by an average majority of twenty-five thousand.

We think we can safely assert that they all have been adopted; but the uncountable opposition in some of the Western counties to the fourth amendment, the one relating to exemption from taxation, is very extraordinary and surprising.

This amendment must have been misunderstood. Many thought it would receive the largest vote of all. Mr. Gorman, one of the Republican Representatives from this county, who made speeches in opposition to the other amendments, advocated the ratification of the exemption article, because, as he alleged, it would benefit the small property holders, in relieving them from taxation.

The amendment does not propose to change the amount of the exemption, which is three hundred dollars under the present Constitution. But the property so exempted is specified by name, as wearing apparel, arms for muster, household and kitchen furniture, the mechanical and agricultural instruments for mechanics and farmers, libraries and scientific instruments. But suppose a person did not have any of the articles herein specified? According to the present law he would be allowed no exemption whatever, although he might have three hundred dollars worth of other kind of property. The amendment allows each person an exemption of three hundred dollars, not only on the articles specified in the Constitution, but on any other personal property.

We are surprised that our friends in Ireland, Dublin, and other countries that voted so strongly in favor of the other amendments, should have opposed the exemption amendment. We cannot conceive upon what ground their opposition was based.

It would be singular indeed if the Western counties yet to be heard from have taken the same view of this amendment that has been taken, so erroneously in our opinion, by those who have voted against it, while supporting the other amendments. It is evident to us that the provisions of the exemption amendment were not understood; and for that reason, instead of its receiving the largest vote, it will be ratified by the smallest majority of any.

When all the returns have been received, we shall have some comments to make on the general result and its aspects. For the present we content ourselves with announcing the triumphant adoption of the amendments.

A DELEGATION of Russian Quakers who have been hunting a location for a large colony of their people have determined to settle in Harvey county, Kansas and will return to Russia at once to make arrangements for the transporting of their people to their new home. The colony which they represent is said to be large, intelligent and wealthy.

A very intelligent citizen near Tusculum, Alabama, says that during the prevalence of cholera at Huntsville, some seventy or eighty miles off, the vegetables on his place decomposed so rapidly that it was impossible to use them—a thing that in all his experience he had never noticed before.

RE. T. DUNN, Deputy United States Marshal, was assassinated in Corinth, Miss., a few days ago. He was shot while lying in bed.

Col. Withers, the Democratic candidate for Lt. Governor in Virginia, opened the campaign on the 10th inst., at Wytheville by a brilliant speech.

THE ALL RIGHT COOKING STOVE.

Buy no other until you see it.

IT CANNOT BE EXCELLED.

The testimony of thousands now using them daily, fully justifies the above assertion, and it has become the most popular and the leading COOK STOVE wherever introduced. Having added to the improvements of any value, we again call attention to some of its points of excellence:

It is made of the best material and by the best skill. It is beautiful in design, and symmetrical in shape. It has the largest and heaviest top of any stove, and is the largest and best oven. It has the most powerful heating power. It will bake and roast more rapidly and evenly. It has the largest flues and best draft. It is reliable to cook, and it is warranted absolutely without a superior.
